Silvia Pedraza is Associate Professor of Sociology at the University of Michigan. Her most recent book is the collection of readings Origins and Destinies: Immigration, Race, and Ethnicity in America, co-edited with Ruben G. Rumbaut (1996). Among her other publications are "Immigration Research: A Conceptual Map", Social Science History (1990) and "Women and Migration: The Social Consequences of Gender" Annual Review of Sociology (1980). She is currently working on a research project on "Ethnic Enterprise: Self-Employment among Latin American and Asian Immigrants in Chicago," funded by the National Science Foundation and the John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation; as well as on a research project on "Political Disaffection: Cuba's Revolution and Exodus," funded by the Horace H. Rackham School of Graduate Studies at the University of Michigan.

This event is organized by the Cuba Project (City University of New York), a program sponsored by the Ford Foundation and the Christopher Reynolds Foundation. The Cuba Project's website is found at <http://www.soc.qc.edu/procuba>.
